FOREWORD

In the year 1907, the Trustees of the Indian Museum published Vol. II of the Catalogue of Coins in the Indian Museum by Mr. H. Nelson Wright, dealing with the coins of the Sultāns of Delhi and their contemporaries. Since then a large number of Early Muḥammadan coins representing new types and bearing new mint-names have been added to the Museum, and it has become necessary to bring out a supplement to Mr. Nelson Wright's Catalogue. This work has naturally devolved on the Archæological Survey of India, which since 1911 has been in charge of the collection. The cataloguing of the coins was entrusted to Maulavi Shamsuddin Ahmad, M.A., Senior Assistant Curator of the Archæological Section, Indian Museum, who has made a special study of Muslim numismatics. The present supplement is divided into eight sections dealing with the coins of the Sultāns of Delhi and their contemporaries ruling over the different parts of India. Attention may here be drawn to the interesting issues of the Sultāns of Madura which did not find a place in the original volume. Some of the typical and interesting specimens are illustrated in the accompanying five Plates.

J. F. BLAKISTON,

*Director General of

SIMLA,

The 1st September, 1936.

PREFACE

The scheme of arrangement adopted in this Supplementary Catalogue is similar to that followed by Mr. H. Nelson Wright. The new types of coins have been described in detail, whereas those that are already well known from the existing Catalogues have been dealt with briefly, attention being drawn to the differences in mints, dates and other important points. In describing the coins, I have always endeavoured to select only such specimens as have not been described in Mr. Nelson Wright's Catalogues, excluding the duplicates as a rule, except in cases where they throw more light on the readings of inferior or debased specimens.

A principal feature of this work is the section dealing with the coins of the Sultāns of Madura. Attention may also be drawn to other important additions. In the chronology of the Sultāns of Bengal (Sec. II, Part I) has been included the name of a new prince, 'Alāuddin Firoz Shāh, son of Bāyazid Shāh. This prince reigned evidently in A.H. 817 (A.D. 1414) for only a few months. The Indian Museum collection possesses only three specimens (Nos. 133, 134 and 135) of this king, of which two are dated in 817. No reference is made to this prince or to his monetary issues by Mr. Wright or Blochmann in their works. Dr. N. K. Bhattasali, Curator of the Dacca Museum, however, is said to have found 5 coins of this king in the Rupganj hoard, Dacca, which are mentioned in his work.¹ Two coins of exceptional interest merit mention in this place. One of them is a silver piece struck by Jalāluddin Muḥammad (alias Jadu), the proselyte king of Bengal. On one face of this coin is depicted the figure of a lion in outline, advancing to right with its forepaw raised. A coin similar to this but varying in some details, is mentioned by Dr. Bhattasali in his "Coins and Chronology."² The other coin is a copper piece³ being the currency of Bārbak Shāh of the House of Iliyās Shāh of Bengal. Mr. Wright noted in the Introduction to his Catalogue,⁴ the existence of 'only one copper coin' of this period which he declared to be of "doubtful authenticity". I have tried to record the find-place against each coin as far as could be ascertained.

² Ibid., pp. 131-132.

³ No. 154, Section II, Pt. I.

⁴ I. M. C., Vol. II, Pt. II, pp. 142-143.

I should record here my deep sense of gratitude to Rao Bahadur K. N. Dikshit, now Deputy Director General of Archæology in India, who has always encouraged me in my researches and at whose instance I undertook the compilation of this Catalogue. I cannot also adequately express my obligations to Mr. N. G. Majumdar, Superintendent of the Archæological Section, Indian Museum, who offered me every facility to carry on this work and without whose sympathy and assistance it would not have been possible for me to bring out this volume.

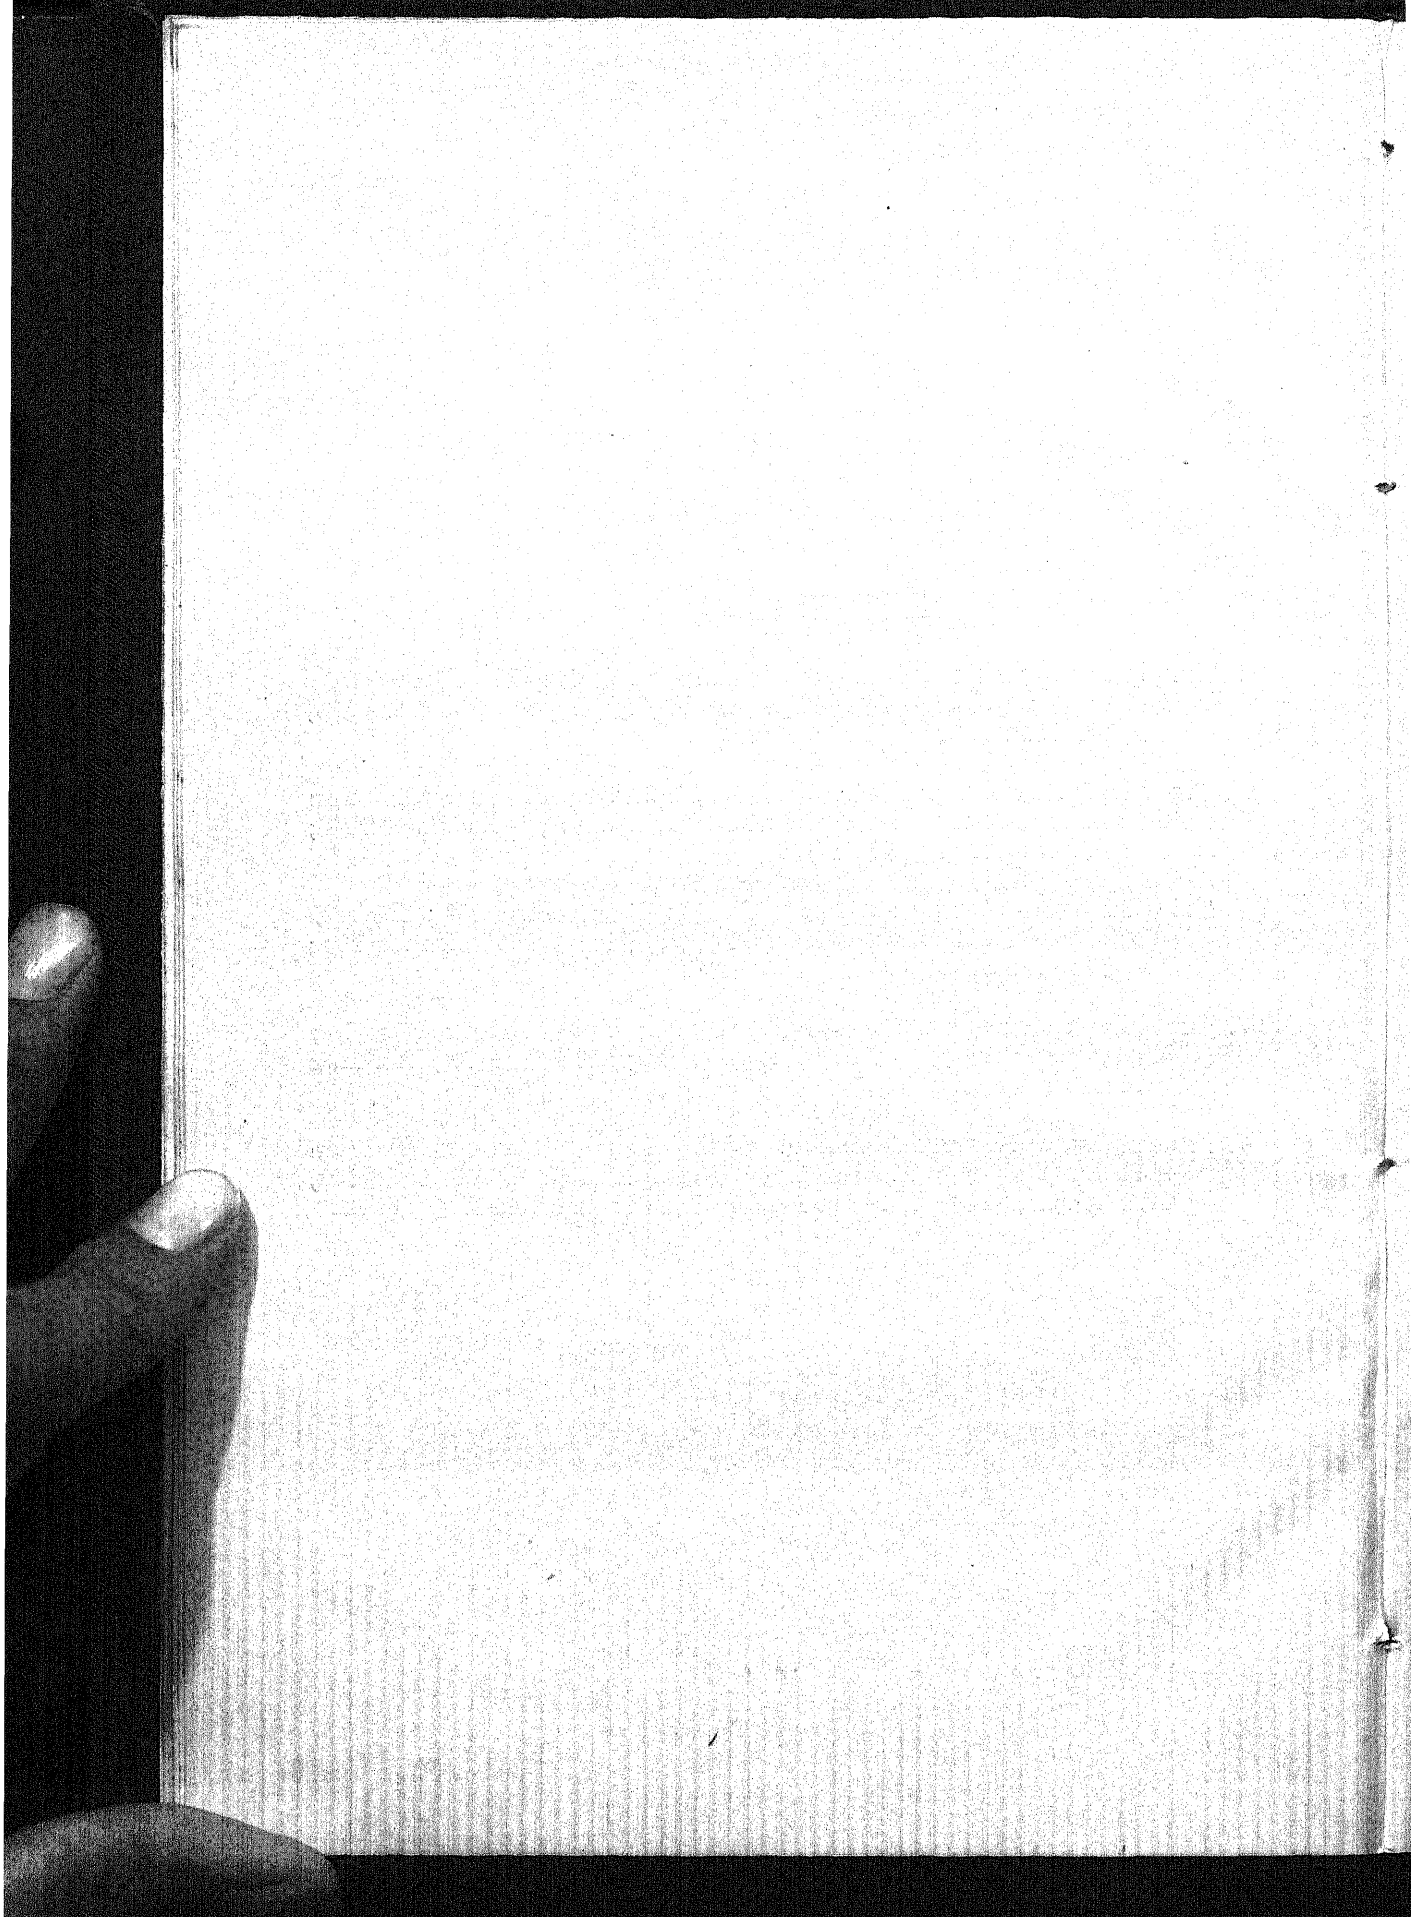

S. AHMAD.

INTRODUCTION TO SECTION III.

The coins described in this section of the catalogue belong to those independent Muslim rulers who reigned for about half a century at Madura in the southern most part of the Indian peninsula. This city, once the capital of the ancient Pandyan kingdom, was denominated by the muslim chroniclers as M'abar (lit. a pass, a ford) inasmuch as the tract of Madura with its sea ports on the west, south and east was the meeting ground of nations, and people could cross over it to Arabia, Ceylon and the Eastern Archipelago. It comprised, under the muslim occupation, the whole area between the Malabar and the Coromandal coasts, extending from cape Comorin to Gulbarga.

Jalāl-ud-dīn Aḥsan Shāh, the founder of the dynasty, seizing the opportunity of a wide-spread discontent and discord prevailing in the empire, about the middle of the 14th century, carved out a kingdom for himself from the Delhi sultanate and proclaimed himself sultān in A.H. 734 (A.D. 1333). He reigned there for nearly six years and was killed early in 740. The throne was then seized by one of his nobles 'Alā-ud-dīn Udaūjī who, in his turn, could not rule long and was slain in the course of the same year by a stray arrow from the 'infidels' by which expression are probably meant the neighbouring Pandya or Kerala chiefs with whom constant warfare was going on. Udaūjī was succeeded by his son-in-law Quṭb-ud-dīn Fīroz Shāh who was put to death after forty days of his accession. The coins of Udaūjī and Quṭb-ud-dīn bear the date 740. The next sultān was Ghiyās-ud-dīn Muḥammad Dāmaghān Shāh, son-in-law of Aḥsan Shāh. It is not clear from his coins or other sources of history how long he continued to rule. His coins hitherto discovered give the only date 741. On his death the throne was occupied by Nāṣir-ud-dīn, once a domestic servant at Delhi and a nephew of Ghiyās-ud-dīn Dāmaghān Shāh, who assumed the title of Maḥmūd Ghāzī Dāmaghān. The only date that appears on his coins is 745. The next ruler was 'Adil Shāh whose coins bear the date 757; no other date has hitherto been discovered on his coins. The throne then passed to Fakhr-ud-dīn Mubārak Shāh who became king apparently in 760. His rule lasted, as testified by the numismatic evidence, from 760 to 770. The last sultān of this short-lived dynasty was Sikandar Shāh whose reign continued to 779 (A.D. 1377) when the final extinction of the muslim power in Madura was effected by the supremacy of the rising Hindu State of Vijanagar.

The independent sultāns of Madura struck coins in their own names in silver, copper, billon, and also probably in gold. According to Ibn-i-Batuta¹, Aḥsan Shāh issued a gold coin on one side of which was impressed the inflated legend سلالة طه ريسن ابر الفقراء والمساكين جلال الدنيا والدين (the offspring of Tāhā and Yāsin, the father of the poor and the indigent, Jalāl-ud-dunyā wad-dīn); but no specimen of this type is known to exist in any collection.

The currency of Madura presents several varieties which differ to some extent from the contemporary Delhi coinage in respect of execution and weight. They are generally small pieces some of these being in no way inferior to the Delhi coins.

The weights of the silver coinage vary, so far as could be ascertained from known collections, from 53 to 47 grains whereas the copper and billon issues follow approximately the same standard ranging from 68 to 21 grains. The standard of weight in silver currency was fixed at 140 grains by Muḥammad bin Tughlaq, though mixed metal coins of lower weight are not unknown. On the other hand, the gold and copper coinage in the south, before the arrival of the musalmans ranged from 52 to 16 grains². This shows that the metrology of the coinage of the sultāns of Madura was probably influenced by that of the neighbouring Hindu States.

The legends on the coinage of the independent rulers of Madura are generally in Arabic and in some cases also in Persian. The arrangement of legends is somewhat similar to that on the coins of the sultāns of Delhi. All the kings styled themselves as 'Sultāns' often adding to this title the epithet الاعظم to dignify it still further. Fakhr-ud-dīn Mubārak Shāh however adopted a variety of religious phraseology on his coins in Persian such as برگزیده اله, فخر شاه شاهان, خاتم مصطفی and النبي باصفا; whereas Sikandar Shāh had a modified form of the first named epithet as برگزیده رحمن. These titles invariably occupy the obverse side of the coins, while the reverse bears the names of the kings.

The series of coins of the sultāns of Madura is evidently far from complete and more dated specimens are required to establish the entire chronology.
